About the Conference

The main objective behind NCLLC-2022 is to bring together research scholars and faculties interested in Language, Literature and Cultural Studies in order to explore the obvious interconnections as well as the varied perspectives associated with it. As we know, Language is a system of “speech, manual, or written symbols” that humans use to communicate which enables us to interpret and understand the free play nature of the same. On the other hand, literature came into existence because of language and the former; as its purpose is to express ideas, knowledge, and opinions; provides a skeletal framework for literature that indirectly imparts a cultural context. A group of people’s characteristics and patterns of behaviour defines their culture; which teaches an individual how to think, communicate with others, and perceive the surroundings eventually forming a cultural perspective. Within a social community, culture and language share human beliefs, realities, and actions. As a result, there is a relationship between culture and language. We hope that this enriching conference session with the involvement of eminent literary scholars in the field of study, would provide the participants a clear vision regarding the recent trends and theoretical perspectives while understanding the key concepts in Language, literature and cultural studies.
